Bizant

Bizant or bezant is the unit of currency in Kovir and Poviss. It is equal to four Redanian crowns.[1]

Copper

Copper is a subdivision of a crown, where 100 coppers equal 1 crown. It is used in some of the Northern Kingdoms such as Redania, Brugge, and Cidaris.

Crown

Crown is the currency used in Redania, Brugge, Kerack, and Cidaris. 1 crown is equal to 100 coppers.

Denar

Denar is used in Arcsea[2] and Ebbing. In Wiedźmin: Gra Wyobraźni, it's the primary monetary unit.

Ducat

Ducat is a gold coin of unknown origin and has been known to be used in Cintra, Kaedwen, Aedirn, and Skellige. It is equal to one third of a Redanian crown.[1]

Farthing

Farthing is used in Oxenfurt.

Floren

Floren is the Nilfgaardian Empire's currency.

Groat

Groat is a monetary unit equivalent to 1/100 of a noble (1 noble equals 100 groats). Groats and nobles are used in Gors Velen.[3]

Half-groat and five-groat pieces also are used for smaller or larger purchases.[3]

Gulden

Gulden is a unit of currency used in Lyria and Rivia.

Lintar

Lintar is the unit of currency used in the Hengfors League. Two lintars is equal to one Redanian crown.[1]

Mariborian crown

Mariborian crown is a unit of currency used in at least in Maribor.

Mark (Narok)

The Mark, not to be confused with the Nilfgaardian mark, is the currency used in Narok.[4]

Mark (Nilfgaard)

The mark is used as a basis for currency in Nilfgaard, and as a secondary currency in the north.[3]

The floren is based on the mark. Because 60 florens can be minted from a single mark, the mark is often used for higher amounts. As such, it also serves as a type of weight measurement.

Noble

Noble is a monetary unit used in Gors Velen and equals 100 groats.

Oren

Oren is a unit of currency used in Temeria and all its vassal states and territories. Six Orens are equal to one Crown.[5]

Ryo

Ryo is a unit of currency used in the Japanese-inspired land.[6]

Silver penny

The silver penny is an ancient silver coin.[5] The Nilfgaardian Empire also uses silver pennies.[7]

Thaler

Thaler is a unit of currency in Cidaris.[8]
